Intivix provides quality service and expertise for all our computing and technology needs, across the board. . We have been a customer for over six years, during which Intivix managed two complex migration projects for us. Both of which went off without a hitch or downtime, and in budget. It is rare to have a long-term relationship with such professional consistency - they are an extremely valued service provider to our firm. Our Intivix consultant is extremely technically experienced and personable - a tough combination to find.

Intivix has the perfect mix of sharp technical skills, a broad range of customer experience and a keen focus on customer service. They have been an invaluable resource, keeping us up to date with network conversions, security, maintenance and more. However, it's more than that. They take the time and make an effort to get to really know us and what we do. They understand our role as a non-profit in the community and provide solutions tailored to our organizational goals.
